Vanished! A Carmel Tradition That Belonged To All Of Us

It hardly seems possible, but, despite anxious sleuthing on the part of the Pine Cone staff, one of Carmel's oldest and most honred landmarks has vanished.

The Bulletin Board, for half a century a meeting place, a newscenter, a thing of homely beauty, fluttering its burden of messages all shapes, all colors, all sizes, is no more at the corner of Doleres and Sixth, nor is it anywhere else in the village.

We visited the new owner of the building at the corner of Dolores and Sixth, identified as The Browse Around for the past years. Surrounded by carpenters and painters Mrs. Mary May Stemple could give us little satisfaction. Mrs. Stemple told us that she was "all for the Bulletin Board" "tho where she would have placed it is a poser, as most of the Sixth street side of her shop has been converted into windows. Mrs. Stemple further stated that "someone" on the Planning Commission had told her building designer that the aged sations with P. A. McCreery, a forand Sixth, identified as The Board had outgrown its usefulness and to 'scrap' it.

We contacted Mrs. Dorothy von Meier, chairman of the Carmel Planning Commission. She was horror concerning the vanished horrified at the news of the Bulletin Board was unanimous as Board's disappearance, "The matter just never came up at a Plan-ning Commission meeting," she declared.

Floyd Adams, Building Inspector came bounding into the Pine Cone editorial offices. That Board has been around ever since I was a whipper-snapper," he said. "It is a Carmel tradition and in Carmel we just don't scrap traditions!" Floyd, right off, named several spots in the heart of the village where our "tradition" might be lodged.

The trustees of the Carmel Unified School District lumbered through a lengthy and lackluster of the Carmel Bach Festival, in

The sole bright spot was a report by officers of the student government describing how a coup cast out the old student constitustudent government used to get bogged down in a welter of detail, and that in some cases the old constitution was even ungrammatical. The result was that the student body was unresponsive to actions of its governing group. A vote was taken and 82% of those voting supported a move for a constitutional reform.

After a new constitution was framed, purposely kept a mere framework, 83% of the students voted for it. Operating under the new document, the student council has set up five committees to set bylaws. The first of these is to determine the relationship of clubs and organizations to the student government both financially and organizationally. The second committee is setting the duties and powers of the student government. Another was to set cheerleaders' laws. Still another was to study election procedures and practices, to ensure the smooth and democratic transfer of powers. The last committee was set up to establish procedures in council.

Steve Arnon pointed out that the first council operating under the new constitution has the responsibility of forming legislation which will fill out the framework of the constitution. He added that one of the things the student government planned to do was review the topic of de facto segregation students for their efforts in brin this community. "It is rather ing about a new constitution.

Bach Festival Chorus

Following Tuesday evening's rehearsal of the 40-member chorus preparation of the 27th annual to be held July 17-26, the vocalists were entertained at supper by Mrs. Alastair MacKay, Festival executive secretary, in her Carmel Woods home.

In rehearsal since mid-February, the chorus is made up of singers from Monterey, Pacific Grove, side, Carmel, and San Francisco. (Now singing with the group for their second season, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Glenk drive to Carmel each week from the City. They are summer residents of Carmel).

Noted for her hospitality and gourmet suppers, Mrs. MacKay served her famed favorites to half a hundred guests. A spaghetti-meat and vegetable casserole topped with cheese, and accompanied by chutney, (piping hot rolls went along) and Michel's golden pound Especially invited to greet the chorus were members of the Bach Festival Board of Directors, Mrs. Harwell Dyer of Carmel Valley (3rd vice president), Mrs. Arthur L. Dahl, Mrs. McCormac Bunting, Mrs. Walter Lehman, and Nancy Ness Bowmen.

When I was young my father ruled the way I came and went, and daily I was led and schooled, and so the twig was bent. My mother told me what to eqt and what I daily wore; I never stood on my two feet, or knew what was the score.

But came the time they went their way and left no guiding hand to tell me what to do each day, I couldn't understand how other people just like me got on, until I meet this student of astrology, who set me on

And now I never make a move unless the stars are right; my life is strictly in the groove with Jupiter in sight. The path of Pisces tells me when to take a bath or not, with-Andromeda now and then to put me on the spot.

The Moon with Venus on the rise is ominous for me; and mushroom-eat ing isn't wise with Mars in jeopardy. But I'm in trouble when the fog complotely hides my star — I'm like a poor deserted dog — I don't know where I are!

Now that the excitement of the election has passed, it seems appropriate to give credit where credit is due. A notable example of credit due is to the hotel and motel people for the vital role they play in the acquisition of Sunset School, an acquisition which will benefit all of us.

This is in the collection of the lodging tax by hostelry owners from their patrons, which will enable us to acquire the Sunset site without an increase in taxes.

Without the knowledge that this was being done, it is most unlikely that Carmel voters would have given the bond issue the massive endorsement which it received. It is probable that the issue would not have passed at all.

Haym Salomon, a little-known but colorful figure of the period of the American Revolution and an outstanding example of unselfish devotion during the nation's struggle for independence, was the subject of an essay written by Jeannette Ramsdell, 5th grade student at the Captain Coper Elem-entary School, Big Sur and one of the essays submitted in an annual contest conducted by the Commodore Sloat Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revo-lution. For her subject, and for her original, interesting presentation, Jeannette was awarded a Certificate of Merit at an awards tea held last week at the Monterey Public Library. "We are very proud of her. She was inspired by her school teacher, Lynn Cadwell, but she chose her own subject and wrote the entire essay all by herself." These words from her father were similar to those expressed by the principal of the Captain Cooper School, Mrs. Rowena Kel-ly because of the honor that had come to one of the students and to the school. (Jeannette's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald H. Ramsdell are members of the Pfeiffer State Park service at Big Sur).

This annual contest, sponsored by the local chapter of the D.A.R. is open to all students in the Car-mel, Monterey and Pacific Grove public school districts and to private schools in the area. These yearly awards are given for good citizenship, for essays on Ameri-can history, and at the high school level, for excellence in homemak-

Guitarist, satirist, and folk-singer Miss Katie Lee, entertained an appreciative audience at Big Sur Hot Springs last Sunday afternoon. In describing her recent appearance in the midwest, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said of Miss Lee that she is a "non-conformist folk singer . . she doesn't wear black clothes or I taki an sandals ... " Miss Lee is currently writing a book on the cowboy folk singers of the West and is soon to produce a new musical record, Folksongs and Poems of the Colorado River."

Coming to the Big Sur Hot Springs Lodge, the weekend of May 8-9 will be two films, "Take This Hammer" and "Louisiana Diary," produced for National Educational Television by the KQED Film Unit. The first film is a story of James Baldwin visiting San Francisco and talking with Negroes about their problems in direct and disturbing terms. The second film is the story of the efforts to register Negro voters in a rural Louisiana district. Producer of the two films, Richard Moore, will be present during the showings, and afterwards will conduct a question and answer per-iod. Films will be shown at 9:00 p.m.

8 BELLS WATCH BE LOW

Don Blanding's Gift To

Lei Day Hawaii . . .

Tomorrow will be May Day, a day to be treasured by young and old alike, for the tradition of poetry that has grown about it through uncounted centuries.

It was in ancient India and Egypt that tribute was paid to the goddesses of fertility on the first day of May. The early Romans paid tribute to the Day with the exchange of garlands of flowers. The Maypole Dance belongs to medieval England.

Tomorrow, thousands of children will carry on the charming custom of leaving May baskets on the doorsils of friends and relatives.

And tomorrow in Carmel and in Hawaii will be a day of remembering one of Carmel's most colorful and beloved personalities, Don Blanding, poet, artist, vagabond, bon vivant, — Carmelite.

During his all-too-brief life span, 1894-1957, Don Blanding's genius with pen and paint brush never ceased to blaze; his warmth of spirit, his love of laughter, his munity from having this event. amazing curiosity about people, all people, is reflected in his prolific output of poetry and sketches.

Here, in Carmel, Don made his first appearance in 1936. It was in 1937 that he became master of his Vagabond's House.

Through the next decade, Vagabond's House was the mecca for the greats of the literary world, the theater and the arts. John Steinbeck, Floyd Dell, Sherwood Anderson and Maxwell Bodenheim appeared, severally or singly in the house that was a miracle of ordered confusion. Earle Stanley Gardner was a pal, and Joan Crawford was a childhood friend to whom, years later, Don dedicated his poem The Litle Girl Across the Street."

The tales of Don Blanding and his Vagabond's House in Carmel are far too numerous to report in our limited space.

In 1937 one whole issue of the Carmel Pine Cone was dedicated to Carmel's poet-artist. Today there are fourteen volumes of his poetry, robust and gleeful, tender and exquisite in the Harrison Memorial Library.

Although we presume to claim Don Blanding as a Carmelite, because he most certainly loved his home here, Don was, in truth, a citizen of the wide world and the seven seas. It is recorded that he loved best the tropic seas and the far-off islands.

We don't know how long he stayed in Hawaii, but his famous poems, Aloaho Oe, Leaves From My Grass House; and Hawaii, voice his great love of the people and his reverence for the beauty and simplicity in which they lived.

Here we go.. It's race weekend again. It has been estimated that about 30 kilopeople will attend the festivities.

I'd like to say that I think that SCRAMP could get a lot more publicity if they had an outfit handling their press releases which would give the important local angles. All the press releases seem to be aimed at professional drivers, instead of telling the important facts about the benefit to the com-

The releases don't say, for example, that the Kiwanis Club last year earned about $5,000 by parking cars, and that they plan to spend the money on a community swimming pool. Nor did I see any mention that the Community Chest gets a straight four per cent of the gross. Last October that amounted to over $5,200. Another $3,000 goes to the ten concession stands. Our own Carmel Youth Center gets quite a lot in return for putting up the hay bales and the snow fencing. Ted Fehring mentioned something the other day about the Lions Club doing something out there - running a stand, I think.

Anyhow, here it is race weekend again, and it's all for good causes.

And before he left the golden shores of Hawaii, Don Blanding tendered his gift . . . he gave the Hawaiians . . . Lei Day!

For centuries the islanders had created garlands of their exotic flowers, as gifts, or purely for the joy of handling the miracles of color and perfume. They had never known or heard of the one day of celebration dedicated to flowers in bud. Don Blanding, the visitor from State-side, who had become one of them, told them of May Day, celebrated across the world - and Lei Day, the first day of May, is now a festival day in the Islands.

It is on May First that Don Blanding is remembered with love, in Carmel, in tropic lands, and across the seven seas of which he has left a record beyond price.

Dr. Walter Klas, principal of Carmel Junior High School, was a recent participant in a talent development conference held in Los Angeles. Delegates were from Arizona, California, Hawaii, and Nevada. The conference was sponsored by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The delegates directed their attention to programs for gifted and more able children. New programs and techniques of working with gifted children were discussed. Speakers included: Dr. Richard Suchman of the University of Illinois, Dr. Calvin Taylor of the University of Utah, and Howard McDonald of the U.S. Office of Education.

Pre-Schoolers Eye Test In Monterey May 7

The Monterey County Branch of The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness will conduct vision screening for children, aged three through five years, on Thursday, May 7, at the Monterey Public Library, from 9:30 to 11:30

Vision tests will not be held during the summer months and parents of those children who were unable to train for the test earlier, and those for whom re-screening was advised, should take advantage of this screening. The Society believes that all pre-school children should be tested, and correction, if needed, should be obtained during the summer to give the child time to adjust to wearing corrective lenses before starting school.

Among the national sponsors of the goodwill tour are the Lions, Kiwanis, Y.W.C.A. and the North ern California-Nevada Council of Churches.

Tomorrow's meeting is open to the public.

Saturday Mail Service Curtailed in Carmel

The limited adjustments in some postal services ordered in Washington, March 10, by Postmaster General John A. Gronouski to save $12.7 million, will begin to take effect on May 4.

"This will affect Saturday Window Service in the Carmel Post Office starting May 9," Postmaster Fred Strong stated. "The Parcel Delivery window, Money Order, Registry, Box Rent, General Delivery, and one Parcel Post Mailing window will remain closed."

"There will be one clerk at one window from 8:30 until 12:00 each Saturday, to give essential service only. Customers are urged to transact as much of their postal business as possible on week days. Rural deliveries will be made, incoming mail will be distributed to post office boxes, and mail will be dispatched as usual."

"In line with President Johnson's programs under which the recent Federal income tax cut was provided, it is hoped to reduce expenditures without seriously impairing essential postal services."

Mance Lipscomb, Texas share-cropper and songster, will appear in concert at the Golden Bough Theater next Wednesday evening. Recognized as the greatest singer of southern Negro folk songs, 66-year-old Mance turned from Tabor in the fields to singing and playing his own accompaniments just eight years ago. He has been acclaimed a creative music maker, without peer.

The Walter Tittle's Gala Housewarming

A joyous house-warming and a home-coming were celebrated Sunday afternoon when Artist and Mrs. Walter Tittle entertained 50 friends in their beautifully renovated home on Carmello and Tenth.

The Tittles arrived in Carmel from Connecticut about four months ago to search for a permanent home here. The family included Walter and Helen Tittle, Helen's sister, Mrs. Thomas Roper and a friend of many years standing, Mrs. Jean McGill. From sunup to sunset the quartette searched Carmel for their ideal home and lyric soprano, will sing they came upon the lovely Lance Baird house with its flower bordered courtyard and great spacious rooms. The great hand-carved front door, the great beamed ceilings are unchanged.

A brief and beautiful few moments of the afternoon were given over to the blessing of the home by Dr. K. Fillmore Gray.

Congratulated on their "homecoming" were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carr, Mrs. Tittle's brother and sister-in-law.

It was Richard who persuaded the Tittles to come to Carmel. The Carrs have been Carmel visitors for many years. Mrs. Carr, the former Katherine Ward of Los Angeles, has been a Carmel visitor since childhood. Deserting Larchmont, New York, the Carrs are "getting settled" in their new home on San Franciscan Way in Carmel.

Richard Tucker Pleases Audience At Sunset

Nothing could have plea admirers of Richard Tucker more than the choice and delectable program witnessed last Saturday evening at Sunset Auditorium. The Carmel Music Society presented the great American Tenor as the season's last music event.

A recitative and aria from "Elijah" by Mendelssohn and the recitative and aria "Sound an Alarm," from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus" immaculately opened the program for the evening. Very few other singing artists treat the German language so colorfully or lovingly as Tucker did in singing the lieder. "Rastlose Liebe" by Schubert and "Wie froh und frisch" by Brahms were exquisite.

Knowledgeable operagoers ex-perienced classic interpretations of the aria "Addio alla Madre" from "Cavalleria Rusticana." Also at this time Tucker pleasantly surprised all by his two mid-concert encores including from "Tosca," by Puccini, "Elucevan le stelle" and "Mattinata" by Leoncavello.

RIGHT TO COUNSEL

The right to counsel is important when a person's life or liberty is at stake. Our founding fathers, knowing this, wrote some guarantees into the constitution. The U.S.

Supreme Court has recently clari-

California provides the acwhen he cannot afford one. Until recently, no poor person had a right to a lawyer if he could not pay a fee to appeal his case to a higher court. Now the court of appeal must as sign a lawyer to look over the trial court proceedings to se if the accused had a fair trial or other grounds for an appeal.

In another case the U. S. Supreme Court said that Florida had to provide counsel to defend a poor man charged with any serious crime. Until then, Florida had provided counsel only if a person were charged with a capital offense, for which he could lose his life. The Supreme Court said that the state should provide counsel in any felony charge, the punishment for which is a term in prison.

The federal government, strangely enough, does not pay for counsel nor does it name counsel for all federal appellate proceedings. It does not have a system of public defenders like most large states. Indigent persons accused of a crime in Federal courts are usually defended by a lawyer who serves without pay. In California a public defend-

Spring Music Festival at The North Cascades, New Book by Sierra Club

On May 11 The Mountaineers will publish The North Cascades, a new book of text and photographs on the mountain region of the Pacific Northwest which has been described as "The American Alps.'

The photographs are by Tom Miller, who has been climbing and hiking throughout the Cascade range sinve 1947. The text is by Harvey Manning, who has edited Mountaineering: The Freedom of the Hills, a textbook of climbing techniques, and a number of articles on climbing in the Cascade country. The chapters are organized by geographic areas. Each chapter begins with a short descriptive essay of an area by Manning, and is accompanied by a map by geologist Dee Molenaar. The photographs by Tom Miller which follow, take the reader into the area; across meadows and near snow-capped peaks, through all the varying moods of this part of the country with the potential to become America's greatest National Park.

In publishing The North Cascades, The Mountaineers hope to bring this unique mountain region to the attention of the people of America while there is still time to save this national heritage in an unspoiled condition. Timber and mining interests are constantly at work, and the pace of their efforts increases. It is the conviction of The Mountaineers that few can look upon these mountains and glaciers and forests-or photographs of them-without wishing to see the area preserved in a natural condition.

The Mountaineers, with headquarters in Seattle, and branches in Tacoma, Olympia, and Everett, is the largest outdoor organization in the Northwest, having some 5000 members at present. Among the purposes of the club, as stated when it was organized in 1906, are the following: To explore and study the mountains, forests, and watercourses of the Northwest; to gather into permanent form the history and traditions of this region; to preserve by the encouragement of protective legislation or otherwise the natural beauty of Northwest

The North Cascades will be offered for publication on May 11 and sell for $10. It is a 96-page, 10 by 12 inch book containing 68 photographs and 10 maps. It was printed by the sheet-fed grayure process and is hard-cover clothbound. The book is distributed by The Sierra Club.

Art of Gerald Wasserman Refreshingly Different

Reviewed by Jehanne Salinger Carlson

The Community Center of the Carmel Rancho is hung currently, with some 18 paintings by Gerald Wasserman: his first one-man show in many a moon.

I went to view this exhibition the other late afternoon after a day charged with activities. It took but entering into the gellery to be instantly refreshed and to be placed in a mood of delight. Here is someone who is not just a painter, nor one more clever performer with tricks to his name. You can qualify him, but you cannot place him under a label.

Whether Wasserman paints figures . . . man and woman in no particular environment or situation, or a small beach like a win-dow opened onto a blue ocean and a fish which someone holds as if it were a flower, or a nude with tones like a seashell, it is not a question of subject matter with him. It is, instead, what he says without us-ing a full sentence. It is his luminous palette, the way he places objects and figures, and those halfwhich make you think of Chagel. You might call him a minstrel, and members of the Association will it would express the nature of his art to a point. Do not be misled, nessy as chairman of the hanging however. There is skill, there is order in his paintings, only the ar-tistry covers the "metier." This,

> This exhibition will remain on view for a brief time only. Go and see it and compare notes with me when I say that Wasserman is one of the chosen few.

Unique Program May 4 At Carmel Woman's Club

For its May 4 meeting the Carmel Woman's Club will present Zarita and Armando in a program of "Sketches and Songs."

The talented young couple met while both were associated with the Padua Hills Mexican Theatre, and were married in 1958. They have since appeared as a team throughout the United States and Canada.

Zarita majored in music at Pasadena City College and continued her studies with Madame Paula Alberti. She has appeared on TV and radio as well as in concert.

Armando made his concert debut at the age of 13. He, too, has won popularity on TV and radio, and toured for several seasons with

Zarita and Armando

Lola Montez, internationally known Spanish dancer, Skilled in color and design as well as music, Armando also designs Zarita's dramatic costumes.

The duo's songs and piano selections vary from sacred arias to tuneful ballads. The program, to be held in the Woman's Club, will commence at 2 p.m., and will be followed by a tea under the direction of Mrs. Raymond Mapstead. Assisting the folks dodging the raindrops as chairman will be Mrs. Walter L. Maxon, Mrs. William T. Moore, and Miss Margaret S. McCandless.

At the tea tables will be Mrs. Richard Ware Hall, Mrs. Stephen Olop, and Mrs. S. K. Thomas.

Hilarious Spoof Staged Last Thursday at P. G.

Perhaps the biggest spoof ever pulled off on the Monterey Peninsula, at least in recent years, was the performance staged last Thursday night at Pacific Grove High School auditorium, under the auspices of the Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the American Federation of Arts.

Although the advance publicity advertised the show as "An Expression of Two Arts," namely the dance and the sketch book, with Charles Weidman as the dancer and Mikhail Santaro as the "artist," nothing of the kind was demonstrated, unless one happened to be "far out" enough to call a few body movements and a few idiotic jumbled black brush strokes representations of choreography and of serious drawing or painting. Of course, the audience of perhaps a half-hundred persons just howled with laughter. Weidman, all 200 pounds of him, looked somewhat wistfully ridiculous as he slowly gyrated his torso and waved his arms to indicate something out of this world-way out. But Santaro seemed to be enjoying himself he rushed from one sketchboard to another, tossing blobs of lampblack at the sheets of blank newspaper, and then messing up the meaningless blobs with scrambled strokes of his mop-like brush.

This reviewer can conceive of only one explanation. If it is true that Charles Weidman was a student of DeniShawn, and Mikhail is a real artist, then the two of them must have lost their way and found themselves in some isolated village where all they could do was wire their regrets at being unable to appear. And the resourceful local Federation of Arts pressed into service a couple of local comedians who promptly put on a straight-faced burlesque of what they imagined the program was intended to convey.

Out on the auditorium steps during the second intermission, we overheard one elderly lady remark to her escort, "I feel as if I had spent the last hour in a lunatic asylum!" But she was laughing as she said it, as were all the other they dashed for their cars, not bothering to sit through the final segment of the program, which indicated such nonsense as "Theme About A Chair," and "For the Saints' Ecstatic Promenades." This would have been just too much. Too bad there weren't more people paying admission. With a full auditorium, the plaster would have fallen in from the ceiling. -HWF.

Wind's sailing up, pushing busy clouds; can't-go-down the coast-road, fog has settled the land! Bending to break overburst spears of delphinium, teasing girls' dresses to hump impolitely, vacuuming eucalypti of dried-out debris, scattering, swaying, its slides of turmoil, frenzied, rising closer to furies, eddying, (lest in gusty despair), to a trust, it won't get anywhere.

Go away, man structures! I had this hill . . . (For the hill was the last, unrestricted mount in wind's clamor of ages, carrying sand, seeds, and straw in its airlift!) Betrayal! Conductor Sandor Salgo Promises Color and Variety In 27th Annual Carmel Bach Festival

In Carmel on Tuesday to discuss details of the 27th annual Carmel Bach Festival, July 17 through July 26, Sandor Salgo, director conductor for the ninth consecutive season, took over the baton from his assistant, Kenneth Ehrens, at the rehearsal of the loal chorus on Tuesday evening. Made up of 40 vocalists of Monterey Peninsula, the Carmel chorus, which sings with the chorale throughout the festival, has been in rehearsal since early February. Conductor Salgo, in discussing his 1964 program, placed emphasis upon its dramatic appeal.. "No known music can claim the same color and variety as that of the baroque period," he commented. "Johann Sebastian Bach's great masses as well as his secular compositions influenced composers across Europe during his lifetime, and for decades following his death. So, in planning the Bach Festival, I find a pageant of music by the world's great composers that most certainly belong! Repeating highly successful programming of recent Bach Festivals in Carmel, Salgo has titled several of the major concerts to be presented in July.

"Bach and 'Baroque' Mozart" scheduled for opening night, Friday, July 17 (repeated on Friday evening, July 24) will include Bach's great Cantata No. 78, "Jesu der du meine Seele;" his beloved Brandenburg Concerto No. 4 in G major; and Mozart's "Great" Mass Bach Festival audiences). The Festival's major soloists, the full or-chestra, chorale and chorus will participate.

"A Leipzig Fair in the 18th Century" (Saturday evenings, July 18 and 25) will include compositions by Bach, Vivaldi, Telemann, and Haydn. Bach and "Classic" Mozart will be heard on Monday evening,

Editor & Publisher. Carmel Pine Cone. Dear Sir:

Please renew my subscription for another year. Enclosed you will find my check for $7.00 in accordance with your published foreign subscription rate.

I should like to take this opportunity to compliment you on the business-like way you appear to be conducting the affairs of your worthy publication. As long time off-and-on visitors and in not too many years, residents of Carmel, our interest in your local scene is genuine. The Pine Cone provides an indispensible tie between "home" and our distant desert residence.

A review of your subscription records may reveal that our presently expiring subscription to the Pine Cone has been subjected to a variety of somewhat bizarre irregof the Opera Workshop, with ularities during the course of the previous management of the enterprise. Since your tenure, it is gratifying to observe that a responsibility for the public interest has been restored.

On our last "home leave," while in Carmel visiting with my father, I decided to subscribe to the Pine Cone. This was in November, 1962. Since mailing a newspaper via airmail would be excessively costly, the normal three months lapse resulting from boat-mail service was anticipated. It was arranged so that the subscription would start with the first issue in December with an expected delivery here in Arabia around the first of March. Suffice it to say it took considerable correspondence from here and direct prodding from interested friends to finally get our subscription initiated. Since the establishment is no longer a domestic play-ground and is again being operated as a responsible institution, I take pleasure in renewing my subscrip-R. H. BOVARD

Local Firemen Study "Emergency" Care

Arthur T. Bergquist, best known in the Big Sur country, successfully completed an intensive fourday course, designed for those revolunteer Red Cross worker and qualified ambulance driver), given April 22-25 by the University Extension and the School of Medicine of the University of California, at Los Angeles, in cooperation with The Southern California Committee on Trauma of the American College of Surgeons. The course, the first ever given in Western states, was also taken by Fire Chief Robert Smith of Carmel and Merle Murphy, general contractor of Carmel, together with over 200 dedicated, serious volunteers from Nevada, Washington, Oregon, Utah and from small communities and large metropolitan areas throughout California. There were nurses, doctors, police and fire department personnel, members of ski and mountain rescue teams, and individuals from business and industry.

previously completed Red Cross Advanced First Aid Training Courses and came together to reand the demonstration of the newthe sick and injured, and a review of basic methods.

Bergquist was extremely enthusiastic about each phase of study and most appreciative of the opportunity to learn more about the problems of, and emergency care of the sick and injured.

It is tremendously important to us here in this rural area to know these things, living as we do so far from hospital and doctor care, here with her three children Lin da, Rick, Jr., and Terry, follow-ing the death in Germany of her husband, the late Col. Rick Stemple. "Seven years has given me time to survey the law of supply and demand in our town," Mary May states, "to own an appeal-ing and different shop here has been my aim."

Along about June 1, the tiny emporium at the corner of Dolores and Sixth will be overflowing with boudoir, bathroom and closet decorative accessories. Decorators home-lovers and newlyweds, please says Bergquist, "we never know when or where we will be called to help." (About 3 a.m. on the morning of Bergquist's departure for the Los Angeles training as "Ted" to his countless friends course, he responded with the Big Sur Red Cross ambulance to the accident near Bixby Creek Bridge, after a car had plunged down the sponsible for "Emergency Care of cliff. Rotary Club Hears of Trip To Russia

"I went to Russia to find out what the enemy looked like, to find out why they were the enemy, and to buy a fur hat for skiing,' William B. Burleigh told the Carmel Rotary Club yesterday noon.

Burleigh, Tom Perry's associate in the practice of law, told the meeting that his trip had made both himself and his wife better

"Being anti-communistic comes naturally to us," he said, "but there are very few people who know why communism is bad." After several attempts, he said, he arrived at this: communism is bad because it takes away an individual's freedom of choice. He pointed out that Russians are not given a choice of political philosophy, a choice of clothing or price, or a choice of employer - the state is the only employer.

Burleigh added that the only dissenters to the system he encountered were black marketeers, all students in the university who spoke English well.

Mrs. Leonard Klene Fetes

L'Alliance Française

In the setting of her beautiful home in Carmel Valley, Mrs. Leonard Klene played hostess to members of the Alliance Francaise and their guests at a "The Conversation" yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Jerome (Jehanne Salinger) Carlson, president of the Alliance announced that a buffet reception would be held May 23 at the Institute of Foreign Studies in Monterey when the consul-general of France in San Francisco will award Alliance scholarships to top students in French who have been nominated by their instructors in al porcelains won enthusiastic adhigh schools of the Monterey Peninsula.
